But the metropolis of death Twehty-one lived to the beginning of with gratitude, and was appeased. The arband sciences, for us hope, continued to go abead; the noise of hammers and hells resonated on every hand, and the discontented in the result of a good and the sciences and no longer threw it in the faces of the period on a local test with the board of a daily mail. It was well north $20,000 per year to be able to satify the 15a population of Primarille, and its steady daily increase, with the boar of a daily mail. And who would not be a second assistant postmaster-general armost as he may be with the authority to give each little community of 15a people a daily mail whenever they ask it? Let mosoiny talk derived, after this, of the indiffurence of our patients of the proper a daily mail whenever they ask it? Let mosoiny talk derived, after this, of the indiffurence of our patients of the government, when a submediated official, with his magical "Do this" in his sauge bureau in Washington, can make a twenty thousand dollar contract apring up and bus fruit in the wilderness of distant Origon. We have heard of authorats before now, but his is the creed distance whose shim pencil makes costly daily mails where one were before, and whose simple fast scatters fat contracts o'er a smilling land.

Trees Destroyed by a Small Insect.

(From Bauger (Mo.) Commercial.

Our-primoval forests are now attacked by a mail but excoedingly dostructive insect that, insidiously outs into and kills the monarche of the woods. It is noticeable that on forest lands where cutting has been prosecuted and the smallgith has been let into the tangled with woods, the trees are not attacked, and the san appears to be the natural annihilator of the posts. They, as yet, attack only spruce trees. It is the continuous of Mr. Jack, the Crown Lind Agent, of the Pravince of New Bronswick, that the destroyer attacks the forest primoval. It is natural areas that the old trees should be cut down to make room for now generations. The operation of the insect is as follows: In July or Angust a gray little bestle settles upon the bark of the noblest tree, and lays a fow tiny eggs; after a short time a small worm similar to a magged is hatched, and then the basy work of the destroyer begins. The worm esta his way to the very heart of a tree, until at last if falls a wreck. So insidious is the operation that many trees which are bored through and through are green at the top and apparently sound, but a blow of the axi, or the force of a gaic causes them to fall, and their worthlessness is revealed. At present the trouble from these pests is confined to the timber country watered-by the Upper Kamben, and that in parts of Arosciand and the provinces. In conso punce of the worms would render this winter on the Na-hwank, for if left standing longer the worms would render the lumber worthless. Trees Destroyed by a Small Insect.

A Coat's Before.

Bester Correspondence Later-Orean, "Yes, I did make one speech for Greeley." Meet Decknoon replied last summer to a question asked her, "I made it when he made a dering man, and when it seemed that, for very man, and when it seemed that, for very dame's sake, the truth ought the total of all his long life of shew thou had we ought in her bohalf, and when he was being beneally done to death in the house of her professor friends. I made this speech for Greeley without money and without price, and for compensation I was rewarded within force-eight hours with $14,000 worth of canceled lecture ongarenounts, the word being. We don't want anybody talking for us who talks for that old damme, Greeley. That was an admittable commentary on what we call freedom of speech."

A Frenchman who met Mr. Dieself at the house of a groat Boglish hair in 1869, outered as Mr. Dieself was saving. "The first duty of a puble man is to despise popularity. Any statestance who makes it his business to catch the approbation of the crowned is an inferior man. He will not dare, when the decisive manents come, to act for himself and to have an opinion of his own." To justify this assertion, Mr. Dieraelf quoted the saying of Roger Bacon. "That which is approved by the values con, Mr. Disraeli quoted the saying of Rogot Bacon. "That which is approved by the valgar is necessarily false." These remarks seen to have been patered immediately after the crash-ing defeat of the conservative party at the gen-eral election of 1868.
